

CONSTRUCTION PRACTICE

The construction industry is rapidly changing due to factors like water damage claims, climate change, litigation, labor shortages, regulatory compliance, environmental concerns, and other risks. It's vital to have an insurance broker who understands these issues and others specific to construction.

We can help you navigate these complexities and protect your bottom line. Whether you specialize in commercial, civil, or residential construction, our team knows your business. We work with owners/developers, contractors, subcontractors, architects, and engineers.

INDUSTRY INSIGHT

The Risk Strategies construction practice provides a full suite of products and services that help you manage your risk and cover your assets and workers before, during, and after completion. Our team of professionals will guide you in selecting innovative and cost-effective solutions that cover a variety of risks, including:

- Risk transfer from contractor to subcontractors
- Exposure to risk and administrator burden
- Short and long-term environmental factors
- Rising workers' compensation claims, prioritization of worksite safety and potential fraud
- Ongoing issues with completed operations and construction defect claims
- Continuing difficulties in automobile liability
- Fire and water damage
